Notice of the company's name change

We hereby inform that the name of our company will be changed from its current wording:

Izohan spółka z ograniczoną odpowiedzialnością (Izohan limited liability company) to the new wording:

NEXLER limited liability company

The expected date of the change is scheduled on June 30, 2023. We will inform you about the exact date by e-mail.

At the same time, we would like to inform you that the change concerns only the name of our company. In addition, new e-mail addresses @nexler.com will also be introduced and replace the previously used @izohan.eu addresses and the postal code will be updated.

Other data of our company, including VAT UE, KRS, REGON, bank account numbers, telephone numbers, registered office address will remain unchanged.

The change of the company's name is the following stage of the rebranding process, which we have been consistently conducting since 2020. We are convinced that the existence of one brand in place of several ones will significantly improve recognition and communication. It will also enable more efficient and effective building of the brand's position towards your clients, as well as towards contractors and investors.

We would like to mention that, in accordance with applicable law, the change of the company's name does not result in a change of an entity that was and still is a Party to the concluded Agreements. The change of the name also does not cause any modifications in terms of liabilities incurred by our company, or mutual rights and obligations arising from the concluded Contracts and does not require annexing them.

Below we provide the current data of our company and ask you to include this change in all new documents sent to us. We will inform you about the exact date in a separate e-mail.
